

Quarantine Art or Getty Museum Challenge: 501st Facebook Group Posting

My family took me serious on “Quarantine Art” or the “Getty Museum Challenge” originally posted on May 1, 2020 posted at. Needless to say, Roslyn loves seeing all the grandchildren singing together in a “live’ virtual “Mother’s Day presentation during today’s family weekly Sunday Primary Meeting over the Internet. It was a total surprise and Roslyn was deeply affected especially with the coronavirus pandemic with our grandchildren thousands of miles apart in California, Utah, and Colorado. Click here to learn more about quarantine art or the Getty Museum Challenge. To view this exciting multimedia event in a well-orchestrated quarantine art real-time presentation, click here.

It has been stated that a photo can be worth a thousand words and Roslyn can testify that this short video clip did exceed all of her expectations. Did anyone in my family record Roslyn’s surprise looks/reactions when she first viewed the surprised Mother’s Day presentation cited below? If so, please post it ASAP!

It would be warmly be appreciated if others could share some “Quarantine Art” moments to inspire all of us to cherish our families each and every day and both with and without the coronavirus pandemic as it isn’t easy being locked-down for the past 8 weeks with no family meetings possible. Resulting that my family’s annual family reunion has also been cancelled for this summer. Thank goodness for videoconferencing technology.

To: Gamma
From: The fruit of the fruit of your loins
My Mother Dear
Happy 'Virtual' Mothers Day 2020 !!